Exhaust and emissions The FA20D engine had a 4-2-1 exhaust manifold and dual exhaust µ. The FA20D engine used a hot wire, slot-in type air flow meter to measure the intake massÄ this meter allowed one percent of the intake air to flow through the detection area so that the air mass and flow rate could be directly measured. When the input ppulses hit the sound creator, the damper resonated at certain frequencies. The mass air flow meter also ©m had a built-in intake air temperature sensor.The FA20D engine had a compression ratio of 12.5:1. The hydraulic press in the forward chamber from the negative or positive cam bin (for advance or delay, respectively) would apply pressure. The advanced/delayed hydraulic lamp through the flow control valve. Moreover, the electronically controlled accelerator regulated idle speed, traction control, stability control and cruise control µ. Based on sensor data, ECM controlled the injection volume and synchronization of each fuel injector type according to engine load and engine speed to optimize fuel/air mixing for engine µ conditions. According to Toyota, direct and port injection increased performance over the entire route range compared to a port-only injection engine, increasing the power by up to 10 kW and torque by up to 20 Nm. Direct injection port The FA20D engine had: a direct injection system which included a high-pressure fuel pump, fuel delivery tube and fuel injector assembly; And, a port injection system that consisted of a fuel suction tube with pump and gage assembly, sub-assembly of fuel tube and assembly of fuel injector. In addition, the water coat could be extended near the combustion chamber to improve cooling performance. Moreover, the timing of ignition was delayed to increase exhaust temperatures so that the cathode converter could reach operating temperature more quickly; Low engine speeds: portu- tion and direct injection into a homo- fuel blend to stabilize combustion, improve fuel efficiency and reduce µ emissions; Engine speeds and loads m ©dios: direct injection only to use the cooling effect of the evaporating fuel measure that entered the combustion chamber to increase the intake air volume and loading efficiency; E, high engine speeds and loads: port injection and direct injection for high volume fuel flow. The admissions system for Toyota ZN6 86 and Subaru Z1 BRZ includes a "sound maker", damper and a thin rubber tube to transmit pulses µ admissions to the cabin. Pressed by hydraulic pressure from the ³ pump, the holder's ³ passage would be blocked from operating. When the engine was stopped, the reel valve was placed in an intermediate locking position at the entrance side by the spring port and at the maximum avan³o n the exhaust side, to prepare for the maximum active position. active.
